September 2016

Eighteen members and supporters, some shown here, gathered to enjoy late Summer camaraderie and a cookout on our West Virginia campus (Will and Svetlana Williams, center; Laura Lee and David Pringle, far left). The occasion was our celebration of the birth of the founder of the National Alliance, William Pierce.

William Luther Pierce Birthday Celebration and Report from The Land

A gathering and cookout to celebrate our founder's birthday was held on The Land on the weekend of September 11th. Chairman Williams and his lovely, capable wife Svetlana attended, along with three local couples and families and several trusted members from around the country. On this visit Chairman Williams brought us a new chest freezer for food storage, and our supporter C.M. donated a needed straight-shaft STIHL grass trimmer and brush cutter. After dinner and some lively fellowship we all listened to an outstanding message from Kevin Alfred Strom about the true nature of our endeavor here: the One Purpose, the self-realization of the Creator. This message can be read and heard at the following url:

http://nationalvanguard.org/2016/09/william-pierce-a-birthday-remembrance/

September has been a dry month that started out hot but cooled off; now the leaves are beginning to fall. September 22nd was the Autumnal Equinox, or, as our pre-Christian European ancestors called it, Mabon. The warmth is now behind us; the cold lies ahead. This is also known as the "second harvest" celebration and an opportunity for us to reflect on what has been accomplished this Summer.

The National Alliance's gate house is once again under our control and occupied. It had been occupied illegally for months by a squatter, one of the hostile coup-plotters who has since decided to leave West Virginia.

Chickens now occupy their coop next to the farm house — Copper Black Maron chickens to be exact. Our garden was a success and the planning for next year's garden is in full swing. Our beehives are expanding fast and we now have shiitake mushrooms "planted" for harvest next year.

Many times our political message can overpower our spiritual message. It is my belief that this was one of the biggest failings of the former successor leadership of the Alliance. Many people who joined then never listened to Dr. Pierce's "Our Cause" or "Cosmotheism: Wave of the Future," so they had little understanding of what our cause is really all about. The Cosmotheist Community Church that Dr. Pierce founded on The Land, his White Zion community prototype, is active again after being dormant for too long.

Our Copper Black Maran birds are a part of our increasing self-sufficiency.

Last week I took a day off and took a 42-mile All Terrain Vehicle (ATV) trip with a friend of mine. Many don't realize this, but the largest privately-owned hunting lease in the lower 48 states is right next door to us. So we took the ride to enjoy the wilderness. At the midpoint of our trip we stopped for a break and a snack.

As we sat there, my friend pointed out to me that in reality we have it very good living here. We live in a White community in the mountains. None of the racial problems that plague many members who live in more populated areas affect us here in WV. Our material needs are met. There is no violence; doors remain unlocked; children ride or walk through town without fear of being snatched by hostile non-White intruders. This is the kind of future we are working to achieve for all our people. Not for the comfort necessarily — though that's a good thing too — but for the safety, security, and control of the direction our people will take in the future. If we can control that, we can fully serve the One Purpose.

This intentional community, started over 30 years ago by the most important White man to walk the Earth since 1945, is alive and growing. — David Pringle, Chief of Staff, West Virginia

Legal Update

Just when we thought the $2 million NARRG lawsuit was resolved — it was dismissed with prejudice on 29 July — now their attorney has presented yet another motion for the court to consider: something about asking for an interpretation of some detail. That motion will be heard on 7 October. This is little more than a stalling tactic: The court cannot proceed with its Final Order while this motion is being considered. Hopefully the judge will not be amused by the nuisance and will sanction the Plaintiffs' attorney for stalling.

That same NARRG attorney is behind the civil action filed against the National Alliance on 22 July by Plaintiff John McLaughlin, who now works with NARRG and is the man who employs our hostile neighbor and coup conspirator Garland Corse as his "Executive Administrative Assistant and Legal Liaison." There is a hearing scheduled for 7 December in Hanover County, Virginia, to hear our motions to dismiss and, if that is not granted, for a change of venue to Gloucester County, Virginia, because the McLaughlin case is essentially the same as the NARRG case. Gloucester is already quite familiar with Plaintiff's claim, having had seven hearings there along with depositions, discovery, and all else that has stifled Alliance-building for more than two years.

It's utterly disgusting how much money we have had to spend defending against these harassment lawsuits brought by supposed fellow "White nationalists." Who needs enemies with "White patriots" like these? These enemies were forced by the Court to lift the lien lis pendens they had put on our West Virginia property back in April of 2014.

As David Pringle reports, we have regained possession of our gate house and have filed a civil complaint against Garland Corse, requesting that the Court order that she return certain valuable items she stole from the National Alliance. If the Court so orders and Corse doesn't comply, criminal charges will be brought against her. Co-conspirator Michael Oljaca has returned to New York City. There are indications that he, as Plaintiff, will drop the four civil suits he and Corse and her landlord/roommate Bob DeMarais filed against Chairman Williams and the National Alliance in March. We'll see how this develops: With Oljaca bowing out, his partner McLaughlin's ridiculous legal action is likely to totally unravel.

Chairman Williams' appeal of his Corse-instigated bogus assault conviction, docketed in Pocahontas County Circuit Court for 15 December, also becomes unraveled for his accuser since Oljaca is the prosecution's only "witness" to the alleged "attempted homicide," as Corse likes to characterize the argument a year ago when the Chairman had made it clear to her that her services were no longer required by the National Alliance.

Correspondence

Dear Chairman Williams, enclosed is $110 for the National Alliance Legal Defense Fund which was collected at the monthly meeting of our New England Local proto-Unit of the National Alliance. Collecting donations from the members and supporters was made easier by our now having a handsome, official NA Donations jar, crafted by the dedicated wife of one of our most dedicated members. Other Alliance gatherings might consider following this simple example of having their own collection jars available to encourage group donations to the active Legal Defense Fund. Thanks again for all you do, have done, and continue to do to awaken our people. 14 Words, — M.J., Massachusetts

Dear National Alliance: Thank you for writing to me and letting me know that your organization and National Vanguard Books are still in existence. That fact is exciting news to me. My first contact with you was suggested by my wife's uncle, a U.S. Navy admiral. I bought and distributed numerous copies of the 2005 edition of Who Rules America?. I also did the same with the 2010 edition, but when I requested a more recent edition I received no reply. Now I know why. I will send a little check or two whenever I can.

Our people are in one heck of a mess. My guess is that Hillary Clinton will fill Judge Scalia's vacant Supreme Court seat with Obama. Pleasant thought. I just don't see how Trump or anyone can defeat her. We've sunk that low. The ignorance of the American people is the main problem. Your Who Rules America? was the best tool with which to enlighten the ignorant. Thank God for you. — Dr. W.M., Mississippi

Chairman Williams responds: Thank you for your donation and good wishes, Dr. M. We had hoped to update and revise our Who Rules America? by now but volunteer media experts, researchers, and fact-checkers are almost as scarce as are funds to finance the project. The 2005 and 2010 editions of WRA are now woefully out of date, though the central thesis of Jewish control remains as valid as it ever was. This major research project is still unfinished and Alliance staff cannot do it alone in a timely manner; hence our calla for volunteer researchers.

M.J., It's exciting to see your growing New England group of Alliance members and supporters meeting regularly and doing what you can to help the National Office. Taking initiative to undertake projects that are achievable, such as your donations jar, is admirable. Each small step we take adds to the momentum that we build on as we move forward. The need for donations for Legal Defense is as great now as ever. Thanks to you and your group for their continuing contributions.

Policy Changes for International Mailings

In the old days National Vanguard Books would box up orders for books and other materials for customers as they were processed, then check the US Postal Service's (USPS) wall chart for various rates, depending on the weight of the box or other mailer and its destination. The process was simple and time was saved when using the USPS wall chart and our own postal meter. Now the USPS does not provide the chart, perhaps because rates are constantly changing, and some packages must be weighed and postage added at the postal facility rather than from our own offices.

Additionally, with international postage rates "off the charts," so to speak, the rates to mail Alliance material overseas have almost become prohibitive. Rates for mailings to Canada are not as costly as those for Europe, Australia, and other traditionally White nations, but are still high. For example, to mail one CD to Canada the postage alone costs $9.50. To mail one Call of the Blood music CD costs $13.50 just for the postage. A $70 order this month for three books sent to the United Kingdom, weighing just a little over three pounds, required $49.50 in postage. Look for increases in prices across the board soon for anything requiring postage, especially for material mailed outside the USA.

Book Offer

The first book published by Dr. William Pierce — his translation of Dietrich Eckart's Bolshevism from Moses to Lenin: A Dialogue Between Adolf Hitler and Me — is now being offered to National Alliance members and supporters in its original National Vanguard Books edition for only $10 postpaid in the US and $18 postpaid outside the US. This is the same authorized 1999 edition, production of which was overseen by Dr. Pierce himself, that is currently selling used on Amazon.com for between $30 and $360 as a collectors' item, and is not to be confused with later, illegal, print-on-demand pirated editions. (The inferior pirated editions end up costing even more when postage and handling are added.)

Make check or money order payable to National Vanguard Books, Box 172 Laurel Bloomery TN 37680 — or order online at:

During September the entire work was read as an audio book by Vanessa Neubauer in four segments of our weekly American Dissident Voices radio program. Enjoy listening to Vanessa read Bolshevism here: http://national-vanguard.org/2016/09/eckart-and-hitler-on-jewish-bolshevism-part-1/

INCREDIBLY STUPID
IT IS incredibly stupid for White people to think that we can vote ourselves out of the mess that we're in. There was a time when we could have done that—when we were the overwhelming majority, when our borders meant something, when the Founding Fathers' racial definition of citizenship was still in force—but that time has now passed.
With the mass media and the government in the hands of people who hate our very existence—who are importing millions of Third Worlders every year to replace us; who steal our wealth to the tune of trillions to bail out the bankers and trillions more to buy the votes of the underclass; who promote racial mixing as a means of genocide—it is long past time for voting. It is time for organizing and planning so that our families, our culture, and our values can survive the dark times ahead.
Together, we will build a new society and achieve a destiny greater than anything that has come before. Join us. We're the men and women of the National Alliance. Visit our Web site at NATALL.COM—or send $3 for more information today.

Leaflets

Each person receiving this BULLETIN will notice the Alliance's popular "They Hate Us" flier is enclosed. This and other fliers, like the one pictured with Donald Trump's face on it, can be downloaded and printed from here:

http://natall.com/fliers

The "Incredibly Stupid" flier will only be topical until the 58th quadrennial US presidential election on 8 November is behind us. We have a limited number of these high quality fliers bundled in packets of 50 that we need to clear from our inventory and put into activists' hands for distribution before the election. 50 for $8 postpaid; 100 for $15.

Commentary by Chairman William White Williams

Trump, Social Media, the Alt-Right, and the National Alliance

Speaking of the presidential election and of our voting flyer, we received the following from a valued supporter:

Dear Chairman Will, Thanks for sending me the latest [July] BULLETIN. It's good to read that Pringle et al. are making good progress at Mill Point. On the downside you all still have some pesky legal problems.

The last time we met in person was at a TOQ [The Occidental Quarterly] editor's dinner, so perhaps you still read the journal. [Richard] McCulloch had an article on the Trump campaign in the Summer 2016 issue. I think McCulloch's approach to Trump's candidacy is better than Kevin Strom's attitude as expressed in the Alliance's "Incredibly Stupid" flyer which implies that Trump supporters are idiots. Kevin's leaflet repeats a phrase made popular by Chairman Pierce to the effect that we cannot vote ourselves out of this mess, which, of course, is true. Elections, however, can be part of the solution. Dr. Pierce did not eschew elections. For example, when I was working at the NA HQ in the 1990s he encouraged the staff to register and vote. Presumably he himself was a registered voter and voted. At the time he was particularly concerned about the reelection of Pocahontas sheriff Jerry Dale. Is Dale still around? [Yes, and Alliance nemesis Dale ran for sheriff again this year but lost, thank goodness. — WWW]

So I think Chairman Pierce would say be politically engaged, for there are a number of reasons to be involved in the process. But do not be overly invested in any candidate, party, or election. We know that even if Trump is "successful" he is not the solution to our problems. But there is no profit in belittling the intelligence of his supporters who may be potential National Alliance supporters. Just my 2 cents. — N.R., North Dakota

Thank you, N.R. The text of the Trump leaflet is a clear, deadly serious message that will resonate with many of the more serious Trump supporters: those "racist" "deplorables" that the Democrat Party's nominee for President of the United States lumps in with us demonized, very serious White racial nationalists. The "Incredibly Stupid" headline coupled with Trump's mug is not meant at all as a slur, but to grab the reader's attention, whether he loves Trump or hates him, and compel him to read the urgent call for Whites to organize around the Alliance's necessary and uncompromising plan. The Republican Party is still chasing after Black and Brown, Jew and queer votes — and we saw an example of this from Trump himself in the recent debate in which he and Clinton argued over whose policies were best for Mestizos and Blacks, with no mention whatever of Whites or White interests.

Dr. Pierce did encourage Alliance members to register and vote, particularly in their local elections if their votes might make a difference in who becomes their Sheriff or County Prosecutor or Tax Assessor, etc. He also saw presidential campaigns as opportunities for Alliance members to become involved with certain elements of the White electorate that may be sympathetic to Alliance policies and share our values.

I have always had an interest in presidential races, supporting George Wallace in 1968 and again in 1972 when I was first allowed to vote. Reading Hunter S. Thompson's Fear and Loathing on the Campaign Trail '72 gives excellent insight into what went on in presidential politics back then, and still continues today. I got involved with the Populist Party in the mid-1980s, and helped David Duke run for president as a Democrat in 1988 before discovering the National Alliance and forgetting about presidential races until Pat Buchanan ran as the Reform Party candidate in 2000. Our North Carolina Alliance faction played a lead role in Pat's "deplorable racist" base — until he named a Negress as his vice-presidential running mate.

Then-National Alliance Regional Coordinator for the Carolinas Will Williams (wearing vintage National Youth Alliance "unequal" lapel pin) enjoys a moment with Reform Party presidential candidate Patrick Buchanan in 2000.

In 2008 the Alliance was so poorly managed and moribund I jumped out early and became Chairman of the Ron Paul campaign in my county and got to meet and influence a lot of politically-minded neighbors with Dr. Pierce's material. I was far enough under the Jew's radar then to be nominated to be a Paul delegate from Tennessee and received nearly 12,000 votes statewide before the Jews caught on and "exposed" me as a former organizer for the "neo-Nazi" National Alliance. As with Mr. Buchanan, campaigning with Dr. Paul was fun while it lasted.

I don't have the free time or the desire to help Donald Trump with his campaign, but I do encourage our supporters to seek out his deplorable racist followers — the ones he hasn't disavowed yet, anyway — and introduce them to the National Alliance.

I read the TOQ article about Donald Trump by Richard McCulloch that N.R. recommended, and it makes the case for Trump being the leader of a White mass movement. I'm not convinced. Nor am I very impressed by the so-called Alt-Right phenomenon that is generally pro-White and is energized by the Trump movement. The Alt-Right, from all I see of them, is very amorphous and mostly Big Tent. They remind me of the Tea Party movement that sprang from Ron Paul's following in the 2008 campaign, but slightly more deplorable (in the good, to us, Clintonian sense). Alt-Right factions are all over the board, ideologically speaking. They do not hold the necessary hard line position on issues that we hold, but they are attracted to Trump's ever-diminishing Politically Incorrect pronouncements against Muslims and non-White invaders. I don't doubt that some of the more aware (but timid) White folks have been emboldened by Trump's former candor and willingness to violate the taboos set buy the Jews. And, amorphous and drifting as they are, at least the Alt-Right folks are drifting in the right direction, and a significant fraction of them have grasped the facts of Jewish power and the cosmic scale of our struggle. Every member should be seeking out and recruiting members of that fraction.

A Jewish writer and "terror expert" named J.M. Berger wrote an article in the 16 September issue of The Atlantic magazine that credits Dr. Pierce's 1970s novel The Turner Diaries, and not Trump, with the rise of the Alt-Right. That's an exaggeration, but the National Alliance's bedrock message of White survival and advancement, proclaimed far and wide for two generations now, has had its effect and planted millions of seeds among our people.

We will stay apart from and above provisional electoral politics and keep our eyes on the long term solutions.

One thing I've noticed about the Alt-Right is the predominance of young "millennials" (those Americans currently between the ages of 14 and 34) and the use of social media. These young people have no memory and little knowledge of the White America of 40 or 50 years ago; they need the National Alliance — but how do we reach them?

I've been told that I should be on Twitter and Facebook so the Alliance can reach these young men and women. My highly-committed time (and my inclinations) don't permit that, but if some young people (or not-so-young people skilled in social media campaigns) can help us use these new media to our advantage in Alliance-building, without compromising our ideals, then come forth and present your proposals.

National Alliance supporters will receive a confidential survey form with the October BULLETIN. When the National Office gets these back from you we will be in a better position to utilize the skills of those able and willing to assist with Alliance-building in every way, including the use of social media.

The millennial generation desperately needs the National Alliance message. It is up to us to provide them with the facts, arouse them, then organize them around our sound program. W. W. W.
